

DISCLAIMER OF LINDA JOHNSON RICE REGARDING BANKRUPTCY SCHEDULES AND STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

Johnson Publishing Company, LLC (“JPC”), the debtor herein, has roots dating back to 1942 encompassing a rich history in both Chicago and the United States as a whole. At its height, JPC was at the forefront of documenting African American history in such publications as Ebony Magazine and Jet Magazine. In addition to its publishing business, over the last eight decades JPC compiled and maintained an archive of approximately four (4) million images and thousands of hours of audio/visual recordings (the “Archive”). Over the years, various contents of the Archive were licensed by JPC to a broad range of individuals and entities.

Additionally, in 1973, JPC entered the cosmetics industry and launched the iconic Fashion Fair Cosmetics brand (“Fashion Fair”)—which was also deeply rooted in the African American experience. Fashion Fair products have remained a staple of the African American beauty industry since JPC launched the brand.

For much of its existence, JPC operated out of its historic offices located at 820 South Michigan Avenue. However, due to financial difficulties, in 2010, JPC sold this property and moved to substantially smaller rented office space located at 200 South Michigan Avenue (the “2010 Relocation”). As a result of the 2010 Relocation, many of JPC’s records that existed prior to 1980 were discarded or destroyed. Most, if not all, of the remaining records that existed prior to 2010 have not been fully digitized and are stored in their original, paper form along with the Archive.

Given the extensive and vast collection of images and recordings comprising the Archive, intellectual property rights are one of JPC’s most significant assets. Due to JPC’s long history and the 2010 Relocation, many records that could be used to corroborate JPC’s ownership of certain of the contents of the Archive are unavailable. Moreover, given JPC’s acute financial difficulties, it is not feasible to digitize and make available the extensive records that are known to exist. As such, fully and completely documenting JPC’s rights over the contents of the Archive (i.e. by compiling and/or identifying complete records of: (i) contracts between JPC and its staff and free-lance photographers; (ii) subject releases for the photographs, audio recordings, and video recordings; and (iii) licensees and sub-licensees of the Archive’s contents) is not feasible in spite of JPC having made all reasonable efforts under the circumstances to do so.

A confluence of adverse events and factors outside of the JPC’s control led to the filing of this chapter 7 bankruptcy case, including: (i) the failure of the purchaser of the media division of JPC to make required payments; (ii) the bankruptcy of one of the largest retailers of JPC; (iii) increasing competition from e-commerce in the cosmetic business; and (iv) a costly recall resulting from receiving products with quality issues from one of its manufacturers. JPC made many unsuccessful attempts to restructure, obtain alternative financing, or sell the company as a going concern, during which JPC was forced to let go virtually all of its employees leaving it severely understaffed and further hindering its efforts to maintain full and complete legal and financial records. Consequently, JPC operated with a proverbial skeleton crew of employees that was sufficient only to keep the business from completely shutting down prior to the bankruptcy filing. Notwithstanding its limited workforce and lack of financial wherewithal, JPC has made all reasonable efforts to make all of the required disclosures on its Bankruptcy Schedules and

Statement of Financial Affairs (the “Schedules/SOFA”). That said, JPC simply does not have the time or resources necessary to fully and completely review what remains of JPC’s seventy-seven (77) years’ worth of records, the vast majority of which are not digitized. In addition, the Schedules/SOFA excludes certain assets of immaterial value. With respect to causes of action, the Debtor has not conducted a full and complete examination of all the possible causes of action that it may hold against third parties.

The Schedules/SOFA have been signed by Linda Johnson Rice, Chief Executive Officer of JPC. In reviewing and signing the Schedules/SOFA, Ms. Johnson Rice necessarily relied upon the efforts, statements, and representations of various personnel and advisors of JPC. Ms. Johnson Rice has not and could not personally verify the accuracy of every statement and representation.

Nonetheless, significant effort has been made to reflect all information herein to the best of Ms. Johnson Rice’s knowledge, information and belief, as true and correct as practicable under the circumstances based on information that was available at the time of preparation. Subsequent information or discovery may result in material changes to the Schedules/SOFA, and inadvertent errors or omissions may have occurred, some of which may be material. Further, because the Schedules/SOFA contain unaudited information, there can be no assurance that the Schedules/SOFA are complete. JPC reserves the right to amend the Schedules/SOFA as may be necessary or appropriate, based upon any and all such further information as and if discovered.
